DESCRIPTION

This 1962 E-type is a car with a most interesting history. Built in very late 1961 and first registered in early 1962, the car evolved somewhat from the factory specification as by the 1970's it was competing in the Brighton Speed Trials in "Modsport" specification. The car acquired some "period" fibreglass additions including wide rear wheelarches, a "kam-tail" rear spoiler, and a different bonnet with frontal "air dam". There are some period pictures of the car in this format, with the fibreglass bonnet still accompanying the car today. The car has subsequently been restored back to it's factory specification, finished in Mist Grey with Maroon interior. The car has its original engine and gearbox, as well as the correct "welded-louvre" bonnet and "flat-floors". The car is offered for sale by Jaguar Classic with 12 months warranty.
